The end of college
 Much like the end of an especially sweet dream
 Is rather sad to wake up to.
 We silently review the years
 Image by image:
 Each frame revealing a mood, a feeling, a need.
 And as we reverse time almost desperately
 We are caught somewhere between our actualities and the possibilities they might have become.

The end of of college
Summer sends warmer drafts to warn us she is near.
Books have been put away
their pages colored with scratchmarks of frantic pens.
Letters have been written
then stamped with dreams and chance.

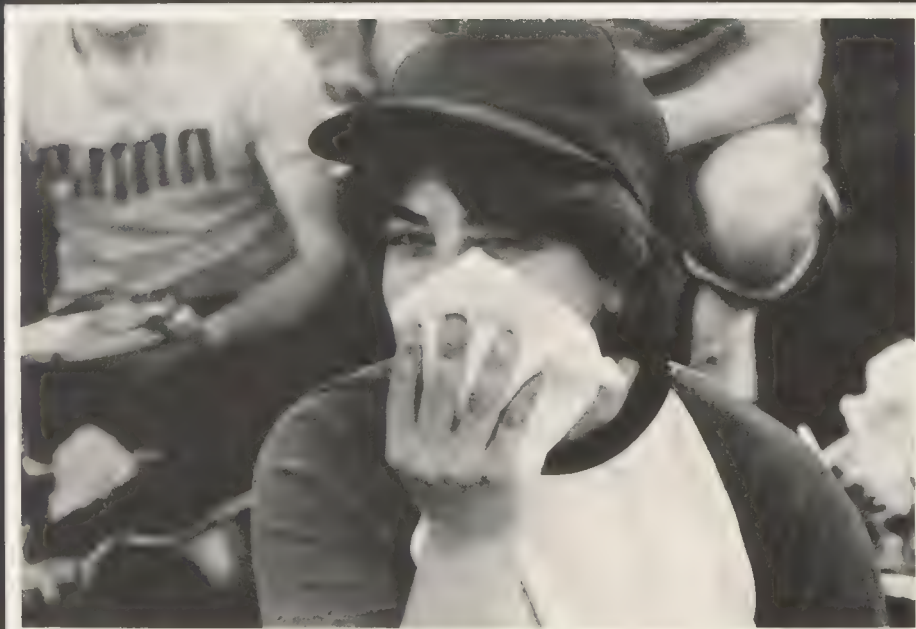

The end of college
 We count the hours in the day and portion them out.
 We frighten ourselves with thoughts of Tomorrow.
 Friends stop in for one last drink and toast the memories.

Inevitably the moment arrives —

Sadly we gather our things
And start
the journey Home.

A LOOK AT 1979 FROM THE BANKS OF MUDDY RUN

Unless Juniata is staunchly committed to graduating a brilliant yet psychotic class of students, I firmly suggest that the spring term of one's senior year be rendered optional by our illustrious administrators . . . on Tuesday, the annual May Day Breakfast was held. There is something highly gratifying to the feminine ego, about being served breakfast by men, which seems to take the smart right out of having to arise so early in the morning in order to attend this elite affair . . .

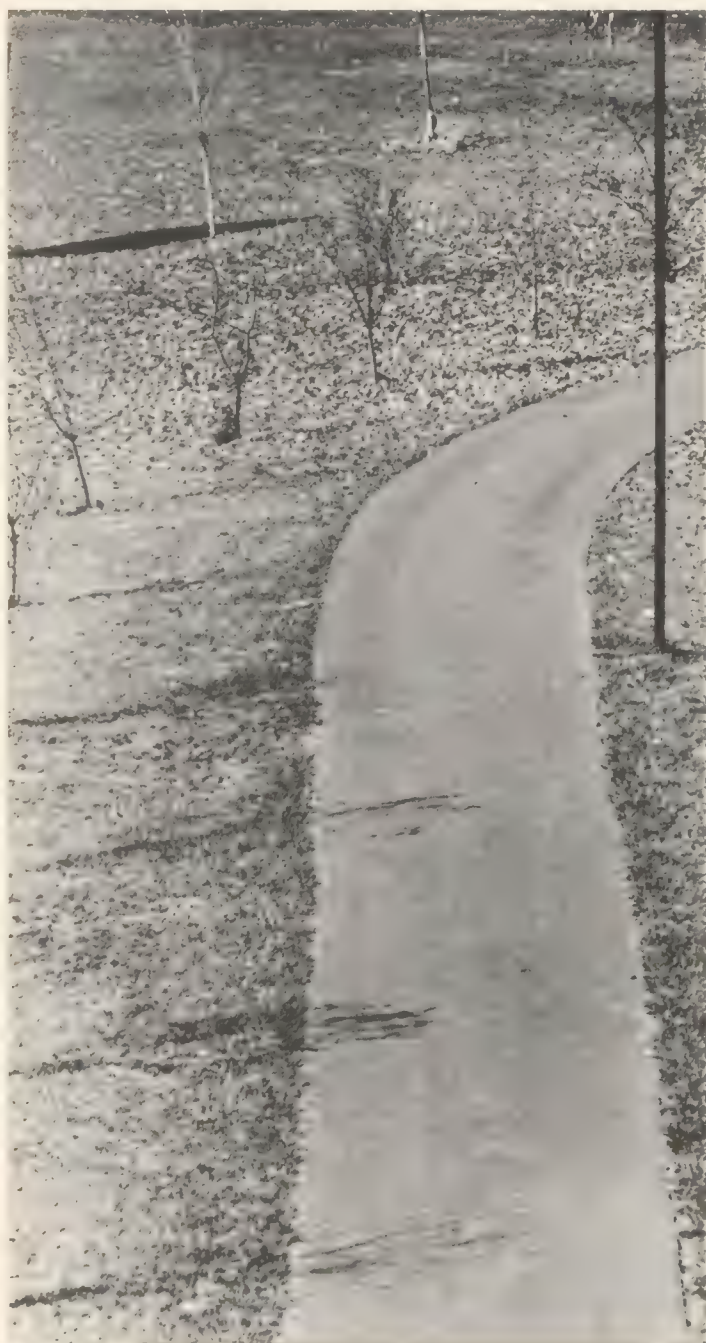

... I am pleased to report that the thespians responsible for All-Class Night '79, have successfully harnessed the elusive, tragic middle-ground between suicidal despair and McDonaldland paradise, as observed last Friday evening under the star-crossed lights of Oller Hall. The participants are to be commended simply for summoning the prerequisite reserves of self-composure needed to step forth onto a stage which faces an audience mystically transfigured from same, sane, rational students, into raving lunatics on the fringe of frenzied hysteria ... Goodness knows it is cliché to state the obvious, but Mr. Davis, you are truly an enigma, and I find myself quite envious of the exquisite dramatic flair you seem to possess for making memorable entrances at social gatherings ...

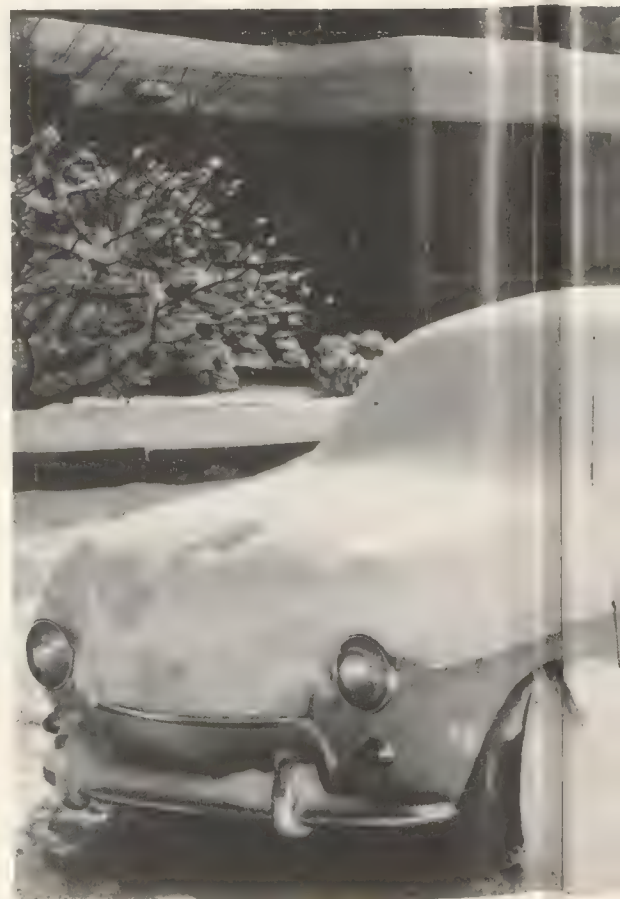

... Wednesday morning, the tortuously emotional and sentimental Convocation ceremony was held ... It was indeed a thrill to don the hallowed robe of academia. The gown is truly high-class. I had thought it impossible for my cap to be too large for my head, but alas I was mistaken. To my dismay, I found that my cap seemed intent on imitating the famed Leaning Tower of Pisa. This misfortune however, should turn out to be a blessing in disguise, for I am confident that my continual attempts to keep it on top of my head, will no doubt force me to stay awake during the Commencement address at graduation ...

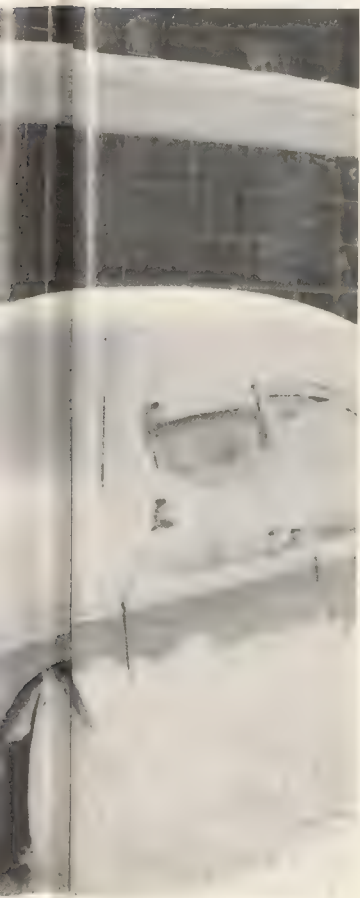

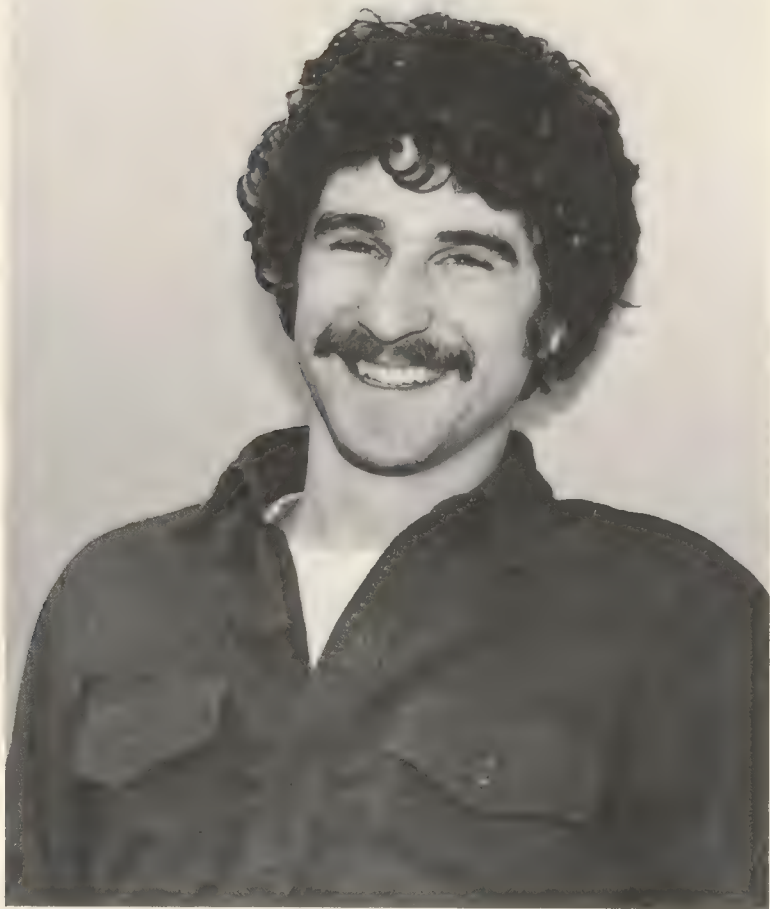

... I simply must track down the cur responsible for originating the highly erroneous rumor which states in essence, that Juniata students are incorrigibly apathetic ...

... I have recently returned from the just released movie, "The Invasion of the Cable Snatchers," which as many of you are aware, exclusively premiered on our fair campus, the day we reeled back from term brake vacation ... the plot is rather simplistic, yet the subtle implications it raises are remarkably complex and discomfitting.

A vile ring of corrupt villians, masquerading as establishment types, attempt to blackmail an apartment of coeds living on the campus of an obscure, supposedly liberal arts college, sequestered in the rolling hills of one of our more eastern states. The source of their blackmail is surprisingly enough, an absurdly mundane television cable, innocently spliced by the coeds. Under the guise of law enforcement, these markedly philistine criminals remove the cables and threaten the young girls with visions of hand-cuffs, fingerprints, felony records, and potential unemployment, unless they pay an arbitrary sum of money within a certain time period.

Sound cruel and unjust? You bet it is ...

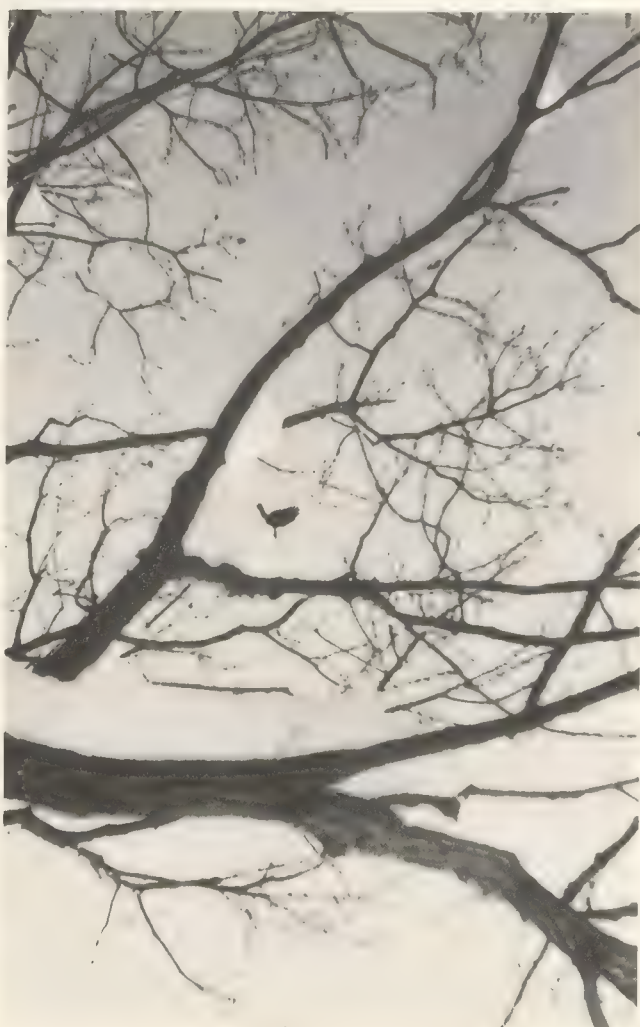

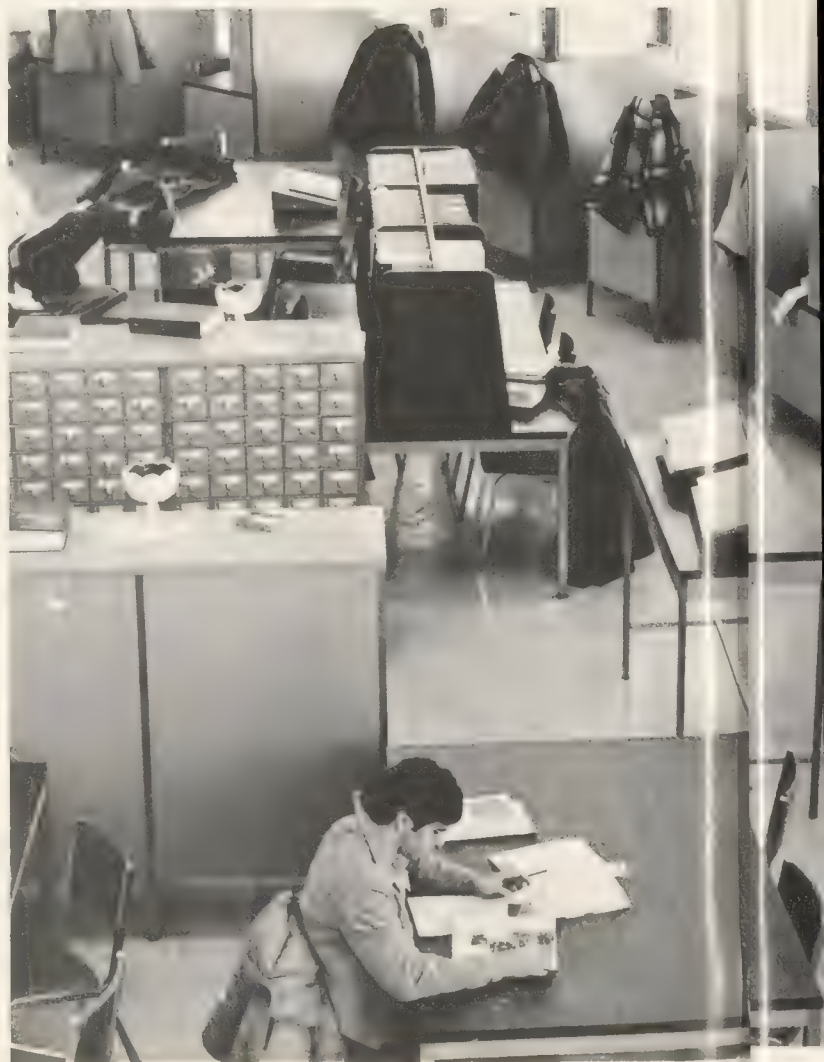

... To decree spring term optional for seniors would unquestionably serve to satisfy the innumerable and diverse needs of every student in a wonderfully warm and magnanimous way, yet most of all, it would indeed prepare one for that traumatic moment when upon glancing at the just-received diploma, one notices in fine print towards the bottom, "Expiration Date: 1980 — ya'll come back now, heah?"
